This research is carried out to contribute ideas towards the resolution of the conflict between Israel and the Palestinians, which have lingered on for close to sixty years, making it one of the longest conflicts in World history. The overall objective of this study is to contribute ideas to the various interventions to secure peace between the warring people of Israel and the Palestinians where peace settlement has been elusive. This study relies mainly on secondary data. It was found that many peace efforts on the conflict have not achieved the desired result. It was equally found that mutual suspicion exists between both factions. It is hereby recommended that the parties involved in the search for peace should submit to the application of the integrated conflict management approach. The Palestinians and the Arab world should drop their confrontational stance towards Israel and their skepticism over the negotiations. The Israeli blockade against Gaza should be lifted unconditionally.
